CARWILL CONSTRUCTION COMPANY

Artist Constructs Diorama

This Diorama of the Surrender Triangle, Appomattox Court House National Historical Park, was created by Charles ("Chuck") Caldwell, Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Each tiny figure in the foreground is constructed from "Sculpy", a plastic material which cures in ordinary oven temperatures. Chuck obtains armature material from the bailing wire used by his boys on their paper routes. The rest he does himself with the white "play-dough" type plastic which becomes hard with the oven curing. The painting of the scene appears to be in almost perfect perspective. Caldwell constructs slightly larger figures for gift shops -- Civil War heroes and modern day ones; example, Joe Namath. A sample of his work can be found at the Lee-Grant Gift Shop, Rt. 24 just outside the town limits of Appomattox.
